

Are you ready to broaden your horizons?

English is recognized as one of the best undergraduate majors in preparation for participation and leadership in an increasingly fluid and information-based society. The English major is unique in its interdisciplinary nature, drawing upon a range of insights and methodologies from such disciplines as history, philosophy, psychology, religion, and sociology.

Through the study of great literature, you'll exercise your imagination and develop scholarly discipline and expertise, the ability to perform research and to read and write with sensitivity and rigor. You'll likely discover, as well, on larger and richer and more subtle levels than you might have thought possible, what it means to be human, the ultimate subject of all literary study.

Distinctives

As an English major at William Jewell College, you can choose one of three emphases – literature, writing, or teaching – based, respectively, upon your professional goals: to enter a graduate program in English, law, or journalism; to enter a non-academic profession in, for example, business or advertising; or to enter the teaching profession at the secondary level.

English at William Jewell is in fact a great major for today's world of work, preparing you for a range of careers in a shifting job market, developing and sharpening high-level skills in critical thinking and oral and written communication. Additionally, you'll have the opportunity to take a "career paths" course, in which English alumni return to discuss their professional tracks and to offer advice. You can also take advantage of a number of on- and off-campus opportunities:

- Because of the College's proximity to Kansas City, William Jewell English majors can take part in a range of internship and mentorship experiences with area newspapers, magazines, businesses, and nonprofit agencies.

(see back panel)

English

DEGREE PROGRAMS OFFERED:

Bachelor of Arts

ENGLISH FACULTY

Ian Munro, Ph.D.
Department Chair & Professor

Sara Morrison, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor

Cecelia Robinson, Ed.D.
Professor & Director of the Jewell Writing Center

Mark Walters, Ph.D.
Professor

Rychetta Watkins, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor

www.jewell.edu

- At the College, English majors can serve as writing proctors or mentors for first-year students who are developing their writing skills across the curriculum.

- English majors can develop and expand their own genre-specific writing and editing skills by working for The Hilltop Monitor—Jewell's student-run newspaper—and Inscape—Jewell's student-produced literary magazine.

- English majors are advised in the process of submitting their creative and scholarly manuscripts to journals and conferences and are encouraged to participate in the annual David Nelson Duke Undergraduate Colloquium, an event in which students from across the academic disciplines present their work to the College and local community.

- Eligible English majors can be admitted to Sigma Tau Delta, the International English Honor Society.

To find out more about the English major at William Jewell College, drop us an e-mail, schedule a visit, or call us toll free at 1-888-2-JEWELL.

